

Track to Cite

1. Go to <https://bit.ly/track2cite>
2. Review the article and as a group decide on a scholar that is interviewed to find some of their work.
3. Do a search for that scholar to find their work. Need help? Kelleen is happy to assist, just raise a hand.
4. Find at least 1 article/resource that your group thinks looks like it would help to further the conversation started in the initial piece.
5. Create a citation in APA (<https://libguides.health.unm.edu/Citing>) for that resource and answer the questions listed here.

Citation:

Why did your group select to review this person's work in more depth?

Why did your group select the resource that you did? What part of the conversation do you think it helps to further?

What roadblocks did you encounter in finding this resource and/or citing it?

What about creating this citation felt difficult? How did you formulate the citation (i.e. did you find an example, did you use a tool, other?)
